Getting To Know Death

By JANET REINKA

"If I should die before I wake, I pray the Lord my soul to take."

Most of us could say those lines without thinking. Most kids could too. But what do we really think about death?

When Portola Elementary School teacher Nancy Rhoda asked her fifth and sixth graders that question a few weeks ago, they accused her of trying to scare them.

Goosebumps go away after you're in a pool for awhile. Unhealthy anxieties might lessen too, she thought, if kids weren't shielded from death.

Friday, 31 of the children from the school in San Bruno went on a field trip — not to an aquarium or a museum — but to a grave-stone maker's, to Cypress Lawn Cemetery in Colma, and on to a pet cemetery.

Thursday they will go back to the cemetery to gather information for a class project, as well as visit a Chinese cemetery in Colma.

Miss Rhoda hopes the children will learn that death is part of life and should be "treated in a confronting, real way."

One thing is certain: neither the touch-not neatness of the rolling lawns nor the cemetery's hushed sobriety stood in the way of the children's curiosity.

"Can you mix the ashes of two people in the same urn?" (Yes.) "How do you mow this place? Is it hard to mow around the urn?" (Gasoline, rotary and sickle mowers. Yes.)

"Can two people be buried in the same casket if they want to?" (No.) "How long does it take to cremate somebody?" (Two and a half hours.) "Are people buried in sections of the cemetery according to their religion?" (No.)

Neither did the children show the full-dress reverence that comes over most of us in cemeteries. But despite their giggles and shivers, most of the children seemed to be taking the tour very seriously.

"Now I think I'd like to be cremated," said a boy named Frank thoughtfully. "It isn't what I thought it'd be. I thought they gave it to your wife."

"It's so weird," said another boy. "Like you see a guy alive and then you see his ashes. The urn is so small that you don't think it's really him."

As the children walked through the sunny columbarium with its colored glass roof and piped-in organ music, they studied the epitaphs on the sealed niches and crypts. Part of their assignment will be to write their own epitaphs.

Many of the children said their parents at first were concerned that the experience prove traumatic, but they came around to thinking it would be good for them to gain a realistic insight into dying.

A boy named Steve said he calmed his mother's fears by telling her, "You know, mom, we've got to die sometime." He said he was surprised to discover that "you've got a lot of choices — cremation, burial or entombment. I never knew that before."

"That's right," said another girl. "You know, if we didn't come here, you

Garbage Cost May Go Higher in Daly City

The Daly City Scavenger Company has asked the city to consider granting a rate increase for collection services — the first such increase since 1973.

How much the company wants was not stated in a letter from Al Sereni, president of the company, to City Manager David Rowe.

Citing dramatic increases in costs of gasoline, maintenance and equipment replacement, salaries and dump site operations, Sereni said his company is currently operating in the red.

The company also owes Daly City more than $35,000 in franchise fees.

According to Sereni, the company has lost some $4,000 each month this year.

If new rates are not granted within a reasonable period of time, the company will be in serious financial condition," Sereni said.

The company, which operates the Mussel Rock dump site under a joint understanding with the City of Daly City, also faces the loss of some $250,000 in dumping fees if and when the City of Pacifica's agreement is terminated later this year.

In the two-month period ending Feb. 28, the company showed a net loss of $8,434.37.

During the same period last year, the company showed a profit exceeding $15,000, according to audit records of Richard T. Dwyer and Co.

Daly City's garbage rates are among the lowest on the Peninsula: $2.70 a month (40-gallon can) for residents and $3.40 a month for non-residents.

The matter is expected to be discussed in a public study session tonight.

Harbor Plan Delayed

By DAN COOK

SANTA CRUZ — Anticipated action on the proposed $8.2 million Pillar Point Harbor plan collapsed in a wall of staff-generated red tape Monday at a meeting of the regional Coastal Zone Conservation Commission.

Some 20 Coastside residents, who made the long drive down to this Monterey Bay community, expressed disappointment when the public hearing on the application turned into a jumble of confusion between the commission and its own staff, finally resulting in a delay until the commission can figure out how it can place the issue on an agenda.

San Mateo County Board of Harbor Commissioners legal counsel James Dennis stood by in exasperation as several coastal commissioners wrangled with executive director Edward Brown over why the harbor application had been broken down into separate items for consideration.

The lack of communication between the harbor coastal commission and its staff became more obvious when Brown attempted to explain why the items had been submitted separately, at his request.

Charles Getz, representing the state Attorney General's office and coastal commission legal counsel, also said the separate breakdown raised legal questions. He questioned Brown's wisdom in ordering the agenda put together in such a manner.

In fact, the vagueness of the item on the agenda raised questions from several commissioners, including Linda Craig, a state Senate appointee, who asked whether the commission was to consider the application as a whole, or just the separate items.

Dennis informed the commission that the items taken out, considered to be noncontroversial, had been removed with Brown's approval.

"You can't do that," snapped Carole De Palma, a Santa Cruz councilwoman. "Each item must have a separate permit number for consideration."

Dennis threw his hands up in the air at Ms. De Palma's admonition, as Brown looked the other way.

Brown also misused a map attached to the permit request, which showed various alternatives to one of the matters under consideration, the expansion of the

OLD SCHOOL GETS NEW NAME

Marge Tobias, a teacher and principal and consultant in the Jefferson Elementary School District for more than 50 years, was honored by students and district personnel April 2. The old Vista Mar School, 725 Southgate Ave. in Daly City, was renamed Marjorie H. Tobias School. The dedication ceremony included music by the Vista Mar Glee Club, student cheerleaders, an address by Board President David Parker and the presentation of a special mural by Principal Judi Young. Presenting Mrs. Tobias with the dedication plaque are Supt. Herbert Hemington (left) and Board President David Parker.

SM Man Falls to His Death

A 20-year-old San Mateo man was apparently instantly killed Monday evening when he crawled out to a rock on the Coastside between Pomponio and Pescadero Beaches and fell some 75 feet to his death.

Pronounced dead on arrival at the Moss Beach Hospital was Robert L. Glasser, of 850 Fourth Ave., San Mateo.

Attendance Changes Due At Jefferson

Two school-attendance area changes are being considered by the Jefferson Union High School District Board of Trustees and there is a strong indication more changes are to come.

Supt. Dr. Floyd Gonella told the board that "there is a strong possibility we are going to have some boundary changes" in the next few years due to declining enrollment.

The district enrollment of 7,300 students at its seven high schools is projected to drop to 6,000 during the next four years.

The changes proposed Tuesday night, Gonella said, do not preclude the need to study all attendance boundaries and adjust them to compensate for declining enrollment in the future.

A district-wide attendance study will probably be made sometime this year, the superintendent said. Attendance boundaries must be approved by the trustees.

The changes being considered will affect students in the Rockaway Beach area of Pacifica, and the Skyline and St. Francis Heights attendance areas of Daly City.

The board only studied the proposed changes and is not scheduled to take action until April 8.

The Rockaway Beach area students now attend Oceana High School — some distance from their homes at the north end of the city.

The proposed policy would require incoming freshmen from Rockaway to attend Terra Nova High School this fall.

Gonella said there are 13 students from Rockaway attending Oceana in all four grades and there will be six incoming freshmen students this fall.

The superintendent said students now enrolled at Oceana will be able to continue school there if they desire.

With so few students involved, the realignment will not be difficult, Gonella said.

With recent improvements to Fessler Avenue, which leads from the beach to Terra Nova, transportation from the Rockaway area is faster and safer.

The superintendent pointed out that students at Cabrillo Elementary School (who come from the Rockaway Beach area) are the only ones in the city who go to two different high schools upon graduation.

The district staff also proposes that students in the vicinity of Skyline Boulevard and those in the St. Francis Heights area who have an option to attend Westmoor or Serramonte now be required to attend Westmoor.

Taxpayer Urged to Get Involved

Seminar Told Budget Savings

San Mateo County taxpayers were told to get involved in local school board and council budget sessions if they want their money's worth and possibly a bit less taxes to pay, at a recent seminar session of community civic and governmental leaders in the San Mateo City Council Chambers.

The seminar, chaired by Larry D. Armstrong, executive director of the Governmental Research Council of San Mateo County, presented top executives of the California Taxpayers Association and two representatives of the Hughes-Heiss & Associates, Inc., San Mateo management consultant firm, John W. Heiss and Richard A. Hughes.

Attending the meeting were civic association leaders, schools leaders and a number of city councilmen.

The CalTax leaders presented analyses of rising school budgets across the state and charts showing the rise, and the effect, at the same time, of local tax costs in areas such as the communities of San Mateo County due to state legislation following the Serrano-Priest decision.

Kirk West, executive vice president of CalTax, urged getting involved with the state legislature, particularly with local legislators Sen. Arlen Gregorio and Assemblymen Dixon Arnett and Louis Pappan.

He noted that "the state has made it difficult for the schools to operate in a time of rising costs," and that the state has piled up a surplus of $500 million while schools are beset with financial problems.

The net result of the state program of equalization aid that followed the Serrano-vs-Priest decision, he said, when combined with new assessments following inflation, has been to cut off state funds for education.

Taxpayers should demand that either the state put up funds for schools, when it mandates programs, or else stop mandating them, he said.

While the state has withdrawn funds for education, West said, school costs have risen.

Two of the major causes of problems hitting schools, he said, are built-in cost escalations that come at a time when schools face cuts in state aid.

One, he said, is the teacher-salary step increases that force a budget increase each year. Another, he said, is the increase of fringe benefit costs such as the requirement of setting out an increased amount for retirement. Such increases, he said, average out to a 3 per cent a year growth without a salary increase.

Meanwhile, he said, the state has been mandating a whole set of non-educational activities in which schools must participate, such as busing.

Schools, hit by the cost picture, have tended to go light on maintenance, he said, which in the long run will cost the taxpayer more. They also have been hit by excessive vandalism, which adds a cost of monumental proportions across the state.

Taxpayers should see to it that maintenance is kept up, West urged. "It is being shorted all over the state."

Benefit systems, he said, are being "under-funded."

"This is the kind of thing that got New York City in trouble," West said. He said New York still may go bankrupt soon.

Taxpayer groups should examine their schools budgets to see if they are actually sound, West said.

He passed out a multiple checklist on physical plant, purchasing, budget, personnel and pupil transportation.

On physical plant, he said, district analysis should be demanded on alternative use of facilities, cost benefits of land for future use, new construction, maintenance procedures, staffing, workloads, equipment and materials and levels of service.

Also to be checked, West said, should be insurance programs, recoupment of losses in vandalism, maintenance priorities, complete plan file of department facilities and quality of custodial care.

In purchasing, centralization and procedural systems should be checked, overbuying or storage programs checked, standardization and maximization of competitive purchasing opportunities checked, he said.

In budget, factors in projection of long range school population should be analyzed, West said, against other factors affecting it.

Procedures, evaluation, documentation, public access, and administration should be checked out, as well as provision for continuous review and cash flow data, he added.

A pupil transportation checklist included policy on use of buses and walking, cost per mile, consolidation alternatives, shop accounting and use of free time.

A personnel checklist included a long questionnaire on fringe benefits, system of salary negotiations, and items such as allocation of funds for recruitment in times of teacher surplus.

Multiplicity of job classes and a large number of job reclassifications should be looked into, he said, as well as policy on leave, teacher evaluation, ratios, safety program, and use of substitutes.

In the cost control section of the program, the management consultants strenuously urged finding out what the comparative service levels are.

This ranged from looking into finding out what the per-man ratios are in neighboring Peninsula cities to analyzing the tons per-man pickup of garbage or trash.

As a follow up, supervisors and department should be held accountable for programs that have been carried out, the seminar was told.

Taxpayers also should avoid the myths of budgeting, it was pointed out.

Among these, it was noted, was that firemen should be kept busy when actually such activity might not whittle fire protection costs at all. Consolidation often does not reduce costs, either, it was said.

In law enforcement, it was pointed out that the number of police officers has little, if any, relation to crime, whereas "directed patrols" or attention to a problem can cut crime.

Police costs can be cut by basing the number on workload and service, by use of paraprofessionals such as investigative technicians, by reducing time on low-priority tasks such as false alarms, and other cost-control approaches, it was said.

It was noted that San Jose has cut expensive false alarm responses by 23 per cent by legislation regulating the alarm systems, and by action on continuous repetition.

Harbor

present L-shaped pier to a T-shaped affair to allow for the construction of a fish processing facility.

Brown, scanning the permit request, announced to the startled commissioners that the pier design was different than originally submitted.

Getz jumped on the bandwagon at that point, suggesting to the commissioners that he had "serious reservations" should the council accept the plan as submitted.

Dennis hurriedly assured commissioners that the plan as submitted was the only plan in existence, despite charges to the contrary by the plan's opponents, who were seeking a delay in the oft-postponed plan.

"There is no other plan, there is no 'final plan,'" Dennis repeated. "The (harbor) commission is seeking approval of the plan as submitted. The map Mr. Brown has is merely an alternative which has not been discussed by the (harbor) commission."

Another staff member seemed confused as to the ability of the harbor commission to finance the harbor project, saying "how the (harbor) commission intends to pay for the balance of the project is unclear."

That statement brought harbor commissioner Frank Lee to his feet to rebut the staff member's speculation.

"I want to make you aware of our funding," Lee said.

We have a $4.6 million commitment from the state Department of Navigation and Ocean Development and have accrued $2.6 million through our taxing power, which at present can generate some $900,000 per year.

Lee also reminded the commission, somewhat heatedly, that DNOD has funds available for the construction of boat launching facilities in addition to the funds budgeted.

Numerous speakers appeared and offered testimony supporting the harbor, including Tom Thompson, area marine advisor for Monterey and Santa Cruz counties for the University of California Extension Service.

Thompson spoke of the need of upgrading commercial fishing facilities on the Coastside.

Half Moon Bay city planner Stanley Walker reiterated his city's support for the plan, calling the harbor a "crucial asset to the community."

Ruth Doell of El Granada, an opponent of the harbor plan, read a letter from Joe Murray, co-founder of the Save Our Shoreline Committee, which requested a continuance until the "final Plan" is placed before the commission. She did not speculate further on this "final plan," the existence of which was denied by Lee and Dennis.

But in the end, the decision to continue the hearing was a result of the commission collapsing under its own weight, choosing to straighten out the language on the matter on the agenda, and presumably to instruct director Brown on how to place items therein.

The decision to continue the public hearing, a further delay, was opposed by Half Moon Bay City Councilman Cecil J. "Joe" Marmont and Pacific Grove City Councilman James Hughes, both Coastside residents.

Following the vote, an angry Joe Bennie of Half Moon Bay, representing the Half Moon Bay Chamber of Commerce, said, "You're gutless," slamming his umbrella down on the speakers' podium, "and that goes for all of you."

The audience filed out, as commissioners began a discussion about why there might have been an angry audience reaction.

DC Man Clings to Back Of Car for 4-Mile Ride

A Daly City man went on a four-mile ride clinging to the back of a car that apparently had hit his own.

John McGrath, 26, was standing near his car in the 600 block of Mission Street at about 8 p.m. Friday, when he saw another car hit his own and then drive away, police said.

McGrath caught up with the vehicle and held on tight, the driver apparently unaware he had a passenger.

The ride ended four miles later when the driver hit a pedestrian, Julio Sanchez, 20, of Santa Rosa at the San Pedro Road intersection, police said.

The driver, Richard Hacker, 46, of Daly City, was arrested by Daly City police and charged with misdemeanor and felony hit-and-run and drunk driving.

DA Opposes Legalizing Call Girls

Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson said today that he intends to oppose legislation introduced last week by State Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-Menlo Park, which would legalize prostitution in the state, giving cities and counties the local option to prohibit or regulate such business.

"I don't see any overwhelming need to legalize prostitution," Sorenson said. "I wonder why Sen. Gregorio does?"

Sorenson stated that he intends to write Gregorio to try and find out what prompted him to introduce the legislation as an amendment to Senate Bill 1389. The district attorney said he will urge Gregorio to drop the bill.

Legalizing prostitution would "create a tremendous number of problems," Sorenson asserted.

He contends that "this type of legalized prostitution could well encourage organized crime to get into prostitution more than it already is."

Sorenson predicted organized crime groups competing for areas of operations "in fashions which they have always competed in illegal or quasi-legal areas."

County Told to Pay Up for BART

By VERN KROGH

San Francisco fully expects San Mateo County to pay "its fair share" of the cost and maintenance of BART, shocked members of a Citizens Advisory Committee on Peninsula Transit Alternatives were informed Thursday night.

The message came from David Fulton, a transit expert with the San Francisco Planning Department at a meeting of the committee in the Hall of Justice, Redwood City.

Not only does San Francisco expect any county connecting its rapid transit system to the BART system to bear the costs of making up the deficit in operating BART, but it expects them to help pay off the amortization of construction costs as well, Fulton said.

"Any Peninsula transit system should share on an equal basis with the three other BART counties," Fulton reported. He said the $100 million "buying costs" should be divided between four counties instead of three.

The 1974-75 operating deficit of BART was about $40 million, according to Fulton, which means San Francisco taxpayers pay out $109 per capita to make up the operation deficits of both the San Francisco Muni system and BART, and costs to San Mateo County taxpayers are now only about $3.95.

According to Fulton, San Francisco now pays about $11 million to $13 million a year to BART, and San Mateo County would probably end up paying about $7 million or $8 million annually.

Fulton said a recommendation will be made that San Mateo County run its new rapid transit system into downtown San Francisco.

Carl Pringle, a member of the Mountain View Planning Commission, said under such reasoning it would only be fair for San Francisco to pay toward upgrading the Southern Pacific commute system and freeways leading to and from the city.

Fulton was one of three transportation experts, representing San Francisco, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties at the meeting at which committee members discussed alternative systems.

Alva Johnson, staff liaison officer of the Metropolitan Transportation Commission to the committee, reported that proposals from seven nationwide transportation consulting firms will be received today by MTC, to do a seven-month, $160,000 feasibility study as a prelude to actually designing such a system.

The firms are Parsons, Brinckerhoff Quade & Douglas of New York, which did much of the engineering work for BART; DeLeuw, Cather & Co. of Chicago; Barton-Aschmann of Chicago; Bigelow & Associates of Menlo Park; A.M. Voorhees & Associates of McLean, Va.; Daniel, Mann, Johnson, Mendenhall of Los Angeles; and Simpson and Carlin of Philadelphia.

After the feasibility study is completed, a design study, involving "a couple of million dollars" will follow. One committee member suggested that the firm that wins the feasibility study be prohibited from doing the design study.

Another asserted, "May I suggest a firm be retained that has absolutely no knowledge of BART?"

George Nickelson, a transit specialist with the San Mateo County Engineer's office, reviewed past studies, including:

- A half-million dollar study on the feasibility BART to San Francisco International Airport. To implement the plan, he said, would cost $500 million in inflated dollars — $300 million of which would go just to tunnel under the Bayshore Freeway to the airport.

- A $270,000 "San Mateo Transit Development Study," to study extension of a rapid transit system from the airport to the south county line.

Theoretically this system would end midway across San Francisco Creek," Nickelson said. It would cost a total of $809 million, and would include a corporation yard in Millsdale Industrial Park, and stations at Millbrae, Burlingame Avenue, Fourth Avenue in San Mateo, Hillsdale Boulevard, Ralston Avenue in Belmont, San Carlos Avenue, Jefferson Avenue in Redwood City and a station in Menlo Park.

- A $240,000 San Mateo County Local Bus Transit Study, which would include two express routes down the Bayshore Freeway and Interstate 280 and a "backbone, trunkline" down El Camino Real.

Estimated cost of this system is $27 million, with an annual operating budget of about $10 million to $13 million.

Nickelson said there are a "number of concerns" about this system because too many bus lines would terminate at the already congested Daly City BART station.

John Mauro was hired as director of this system last October, and he and his staff already have begun implementation of it.

All three studies were funded two-thirds from federal funds.

Lou Montie of Santa Clara County reviewed plans for his county, including restoration of the old Del Monte train to Monterey and the "Santan Special" on Southern Pacific tracks to Santa Cruz.

Marva Green, a Redwood City woman, was elected vice chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee.

She said she came to San Mateo County in 1969 to work in the anti-poverty program, and after moving briefly to Foster City, "I walked, begged a ride and even hitchhiked to classes at Canada College."

Cities in 'No-Lose Position'

San Bruno OKs Census

San Bruno is the first city to report to the San Mateo County manager's office that it will participate in a planned countywide special census tentatively scheduled to be taken in October.

The City Council has authorized the expenditure of some $20,000 to take part in the census. It will be handled by the state Department of Finance.

According to County Manager M. D. Tarshes, all city managers in the county have been asked to participate in the special census to provide updated population data. The data will allow the county and cities to qualify for additional state cigarette and gasoline tax funds.

State funds are allocated to counties and cities based on population estimates made by the Department of Finance.

That department, Tarshes said, has notified the county that it will no longer make population estimates based on the last census, taken in 1970. Tarshes said the department makes estimates only for five years after a census because estimates cannot be considered accurate enough after that time.

If the county and cities choose not to pay for a special census, then population figures will be locked at the 1975 level.

Tarshes said he would submit the census proposal to the County Board of Supervisors in two weeks.

Meanwhile, San Bruno City Manager Gerald Minford has told the City Council that county cities are in "a no-lose position" with respect to the cost of a special census "because the costs will not exceed the actual (additional) money cities will receive over the next three years and will not exceed what it would cost the city to do a special census of its own."

Minford said he believes the census will show a population increase for many cities, thus qualifying them for additional funding.

OLD FASHIONED
VEGETABLE SOUP

2½ lbs. veal or beef bouillon bones • 3 qts. cold water • 2 medium tomatoes, chopped • ¼ cup sliced onions • 1 cup diced carrots • ½ cup diced celery • ½ cup diced green peppers • ½ cup diced potatoes • ½ cup macaroni, broken into small pieces • 3 tbs. chopped parsley • ¼ tsp. thyme • Dash of cayenne • 1 tbs. cooking oil • 2 tbs. flour • Salt and pepper to taste.

Place bouillon bones in water, cover and bring to a boil. Skim surface if necessary. Reduce heat to a simmer, add tomatoes, thyme, cayenne, and salt and pepper. Let simmer for 3½ to 4 hours. Remove bouillon bones. Place oil in a skillet, add remaining ingredients except macaroni and parsley. Cook 5 to 10 minutes or until vegetables are soft, not brown. Add flour and stir until well blended. Stir into soup stock, add macaroni and parsley, simmer slowly until vegetables and macaroni are tender, 20 to 25 minutes. Serve with parmesan cheese. 6 to 8 servings.
This soup will jell when cold if made with veal.

Colma Creek Flood Tax Possibility Recedes

By JANET PARKER

Eighty South San Francisco property owners — including owners of many major businesses — learned this week they probably will not be added to the Colma Creek Flood Control District tax rolls.

County engineers are having second thoughts about a proposal that would have altered the existing flood control district boundary lines and placed the 80 properties in the district for the first time.

But the Engineering Department's new stand may also lead to legal action by the owners of Tanforan Shopping Center and Guy F. Atkinson Co., who would have benefited by those boundary changes. Their lands would have been placed in different zones and charged lower tax rates.

When Industrial Park property owners in South San Francisco learned last year that the Colma Creek Advisory Committee recommended that their properties be included in the flood zones, they protested.

The committee said the Industrial Park properties are subject to flooding and should pay for the ongoing flood control improvements. Many owners, however, said they have elevated their properties through grading and that flooding no longer occurs. To place them in the flood control district and charge them a tax would be unfair, they said.

Deputy District Engineer V. K. Sanders said this week that after studying the problem with South San Francisco staff, they concluded that the Industrial Park owners were right. The lands actually are not subject to flooding from Colma Creek.

Sanders said the zone change proposal was based on Army Corp of Engineers maps of the area and those maps have been found to be in error.

"As we reviewed some challenges by property owners about the elevations of their land, we had to agree with them. Their properties were above the water surface," Sanders said.

If they were annexed to the flood control district, the Industrial Park landowners would have been charged a 28-cent tax per $100 of assessed valuation.

The engineers will go back to the advisory committee and ask that it reconsider its recommendation. The county Board of Supervisors ultimately must approve any boundary changes.

In a letter to the supervisors March 19, County Engineer S. H. Cantwell Jr. had said a report would be made to the advisory committee soon.

"The City of South San Francisco has a sound basis with which to challenge the flood hazard area designation for that city and we believe the city will proceed with that action in the near future," Cantwell said.

Although protests have been lodged with the City Council, the council has not taken any formal action, approving or disapproving the boundary change.

While the Industrial Park property owners will be happy with the dropping of the proposal, observers noted, the owners of Tanforan Shopping Center and Guy F. Atkinson Co. will not.

The same proposal that would have added the 80 properties to the tax rolls also would have dropped the tax rates for Tanforan and Atkinson.

Flood zones are rated from one (high risk) to three (low risk). Tanforan, rated in Zone 2, would have had its tax rate dropped from 28 to 16 cents. For Atkinson, in Zone 1, the tax rate would have dropped from 40 cents to 28 cents.

In 1974, Tanforan filed suit about its high tax rate and Guy F. Atkinson threatened to do the same. They said that grading has elevated their properties and they no longer are subject to the high flood risk.

The 1975 zoning proposal cooled — for the time being — any plans for lawsuits.

If the advisory committee follows the engineer's recommendation, as is expected, those threats could be revived.

Tom Jennett, corporate relations manager for Guy F. Atkinson Co., said legal action will be considered.

"If we concluded that the proposed tax rate as scheduled is discriminatory, we would file suit," Jennett said.

Tanforan management had not yet determined what action, if any, will be taken or if their lawsuit will be reactivated.

In the meantime, the county expects a total revision of the flood control district boundaries in the next few years.

"My proposal to the committee will be that the matter be left in abeyance for at least a year, maybe two years," Sanders said.

The federal insurance administrator will be completing new studies and maps of the area for the national flood insurance program.

"We would expect the flood hazard area maps to properly reflect what areas are subject to flooding," Sanders said. The maps will not be issued until the cities involved agree on their content, he said. Then the county will once again take up the problem of revising the zones.

SSF Parents Favor Portable Classrooms

The parents at six South San Francisco elementary schools overwhelmingly favor the use of portable classrooms on two campuses to control overcrowding.

Options of year-round schools, double sessions, busing of students and a portable school were rejected by the 1,105 families responding to a recent survey.

The South San Francisco Unified School District Board of Trustees studied the survey results last week in the last of a series of community meetings in the Westborough area.

Trustees sought the community's opinion about how projected overcrowding in that area in general — and Skyline and Junipero Serra Schools in particular — ought to be handled.

Although the trustees are not bound by the survey results, all five expressed approval of the option chosen by parents. Formal action on one of the five alternatives or a combination of alternatives is expected April 29.

While schools in other areas of the district are declining in enrollment, Junipero Serra and Skyline schools are projected to increase by 310 students in the next six years.

Trustees explained last week that the district already owns some portable classrooms. The only cost would be $3,500 to move and install each building.

Board President Tom Henkle said each portable is a fully functioning class facility except that they do not have running water.

"It is our feeling at this moment that one portable on the Skyline campus can take care of next year's need," Henkle said.

Skyline alone is expected to gain 140 to 150 students in the next six years. A single portable houses 25 students.

Fifty-two per cent of the families who were mailed surveys responded. Henkle called the results representative.

While 52 per cent favored portable classrooms, 15 per cent favored busing students, 13 per cent favored year-round schools, 10 per cent favored portable school at the vacant West Park site and 8 per cent wanted double sessions.

Parents of Avalon, Foxridge, Monte Verde, Serra Vista, Skyline and Junipero Serra schools' students were questioned.

While portable schools will allow communities to retain neighborhood schools, there are certain disadvantages.

The district already had pointed out that using the portables must hasten the time when schools in other areas of the city are closing and will result in less playground space on campuses where portables are installed.

The district will not be able to more evenly distribute students district-wide to compensate for declining enrollment and vacant classes in some of the district's 15 elementary schools, the trustee said.

The board, however, has not yet dealt with the specific problem of closing one or more schools.

The more than 60 parents who attended Thursday's meetings were concerned about a variety of enrollment and attendance.

Some West Park area parents said the district ought to straighten out the criss-cross attendance boundaries that have required children on the same block to be assigned to different schools to balance enrollments.

Trustee Val Lamberton said she is committed to the need for neighborhood schools and the portable classrooms will help maintain them. At the same time, however, she wants a solution to the confusing West Park attendance boundaries.

Trustee Pat Hilliard said portables are "a workable solution." But, the possibility that portables could result in closing more schools on the other side of town should be looked at more closely before any decision is made, she said.

A few parents asked if the district will take another look at the possibility of year-round schools in the future.

Trustee Ken Austin pointed out that in order for year-round schools to be effective, at least 70 per cent of the district families would be in favor of it.

Another parent asked if the school district will ever be able to move its ninth grade students into the high schools and sixth grade students into the junior highs. Presently, South San Francisco has seventh, eighth and ninth grade students in junior highs.

Henkle said there is no way the two high schools — El Camino and South San Francisco — can house the additional students now.

He said the present situation is not ideal and that individual board members are committed to eventually getting the ninth grade students into the senior-high schools.

Veterans!

Skylawn Memorial Park

Veterans' Memorial of Golden West

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE TO ALL VETERANS AND THEIR FAMILIES RESIDING ON THE PENINSULA AND SAN FRANCISCO

A year ago SKYLAWN MEMORIAL PARK announced an exclusive new program for Veterans, as detailed below.

Now, a year later, we find that this program is in increasing demand. On average, every working day during these past twelve months, one or more veterans have availed themselves of this program, at substantial savings to themselves and their families.

We have therefore decided to extend our original offer in order that all veterans, in addition to those residing in the mid-Peninsula area, may have the full benefit which this program offers.

Q. WHO IS QUALIFIED UNDER THIS NEW PROGRAM?

A. Every honorably discharged veteran.

Q. WHAT DOES THE PROGRAM OFFER?

A. A designated burial space, selected by the veteran, AT NO CHARGE excepting that $40 be deposited into the Endowment Care Fund.

Q. WHAT IS THE ENDOWMENT CARE FUND?

A. A trust fund administered in accordance with California State law. The income from the fund can only be used for the care and maintenance of the property.

Q. WHAT PROOF OF OWNERSHIP WILL THE VETERAN RECEIVE?

A. Skylawn will issue a certificate of ownership in the name of the veteran.

Q. IS THIS PROGRAM AVAILABLE ON A BEFORE NEED BASIS?

A. Yes! In fact, we would encourage every veteran to make arrangements before the need arises.

Q. WHAT IS THE ADVANTAGE OF ARRANGING "BEFORE NEED"?

A. It will assure the veteran of a preferred selection — and the ability to plan wisely for his family's future needs and protection.

Q. WHAT IF THE VETERAN HAS NO FAMILY?

A. THE NO CHARGE SPACE IS MADE AVAILABLE IRRESPECTIVE OF WHETHER OTHER SPACES ARE PURCHASED.

Q. ARE THERE ANY OTHER CEMETERY CHARGES AT TIME OF DEATH?

A. Yes! The opening and closing of the space, recording fee, concrete vault or liner.

Q. WHAT ABOUT VETERANS BURIAL BENEFIT?

A. Every honorably discharged veteran of any war is entitled to burial allowance of $150 which he can apply towards the above.

Q. WHAT ABOUT A MEMORIAL TABLET?

A. The veteran is entitled to a free bronze tablet, paying only for the endowment care and setting fee.

Q. HOW ARE THESE ADDITIONAL BENEFITS OBTAINED?

A. Experienced Skylawn staff will provide the necessary assistance, information and proper forms.

Q. WHAT ABOUT BURIAL SPACES FOR THE VETERAN'S FAMILY?

A. Skylawn believes that it has an obligation to help maintain the traditional family memorial. A spouse, parents, children, and other close family members may purchase spaces at prevailing prices in Veterans section.

Q. IF ADDITIONAL PROPERTY IS WANTED FOR FAMILY MEMBERS, MUST THIS BE PAID FOR IN CASH?

A. No! Skylawn will arrange a payment plan to suit the needs of the family.

Q. WILL THIS PROGRAM CONTINUE INDEFINITELY?

A. Skylawn will maintain a veterans area as long as land is available and there is a public demand. However, the program as outlined is SPONSORED WITHOUT ANY FEDERAL, STATE OR OTHER AGENCY FUNDS OR ASSISTANCE, and continuation of the program is dependent on the future economy of the area. Nevertheless, Skylawn will guarantee to maintain the present NO CHARGE policy, as outlined above, until March 30, 1977.

Q. WHERE IS SKYLAWN MEMORIAL PARK?

A. LOCATED AT THE CREST OF SKYLINE BOULEVARD AND HIGHWAY 92, SKYLAWN HAS THE PERFECT SETTING FOR A MEMORIAL PARK. OVERLOOKING THE PACIFIC OCEAN ON ONE SIDE, AND CRYSTAL SPRINGS LAKE ON THE OTHER, YET ONLY 15 MINUTES FROM DOWNTOWN SAN MATEO, AND WITHIN EASY REACH OF SAN FRANCISCO OR THE SOUTHERN END OF THE BAY. TRULY, IN THE HEART OF THE PENINSULA, AND "NATURALLY" MORE BEAUTIFUL.

Tax Boost Coming

By BOB HEMINGWAY
San Mateo County taxpayers will be faced with a "substantial increase" in property taxes next year.

County Manager M.D. Tarshes predicts in a report to the Board of Supervisors.

that at least $10 million will be needed from property taxes in 1976-77, over and above any additional amounts needed to finance the effect of inflation on current levels of service and to replace declining state and federal revenues in mandated partnership programs.

Based on the county's present assessed valuation, it would require 37 cents per $100 of assessed valuation to raise $10 million. One cent on the tax rate raises $272,000.

Tarshes attributes the bleak outlook to three major factors:

- A reduction in interest earnings on invested county funds.
- A reduction in the year-end general fund balance.
- An increase in county payments for Medi-Cal and welfare programs.

Tarshes says in the report, which he will submit to the Board of Supervisors on Tuesday, that the current county budget includes $6.8 million in interest earned on cash balances invested by County Treasurer Ross Conti during 1974-75.

Interest rates have dropped recently to a consistently lower level and, therefore, earnings will be less, he notes.

Furthermore, Tarshes reports, a further reduction will occur in earnings available to help finance the county budget as the result of a legally required change in the computation method used to allocate interest to the various agencies for whom the treasurer makes investments.

The combined result of the two factors will lower the estimated general fund interest allocation in 1976-77 to about $2.4 million, a reduction of about $4.4 million, the manager says.

Tarshes notes that $9.5 million was available in the general fund balance to help finance the 1975-76 county budget. That helped in reducing the property tax rate this year by about 25 cents to $1.66 per $100 of assessed valuation.

At the end of the current fiscal year, he relates, it is expected that about $4.9 million will be available in the general fund balance, a reduction of $4.6 million.

The main cause of the lower balance is a substantial increase required in cash payments to the Medi-Cal program, Tarshes says.

State law specifies an amount each county must pay for its share of Medi-Cal and welfare programs in direct proportion to the rate of increase in assessed valuation.

The effect of this adjustment, Tarshes says, is to maintain a constant local tax rate for a portion of these programs. The combined total subject to adjustment based on assessed valuation is now $10.3 million, an increase from $6.2 million three years ago.

If the assessed valuation increases by 10 per cent next year (there will be no increase in assessed valuation on single-family residential property) the added property tax cost will be $1 million, Tarshes says.

"It is inevitable that inflation will cause higher costs in my programs which must be continued," Tarshes states. "Therefore, the board will be faced with many difficult program decisions to avoid a much larger increase in property tax requirements than the $10 million total."

Tarshes says he has instructed his staff to work with each department to present the lowest possible operating budget for 1976-77, and also to carefully identify the possible program choices or service level options which can be considered by the board to reduce the impact of higher costs and lower revenues.

Daly City Rules Out Conflict of Interest

By FRANK LAPIERRE
A member of the Daly City redevelopment area planning team is not involved in any conflict of interest dealings, Albert Polonsky, Daly City attorney, informed the council this week.

For the past two months, Polonsky's office had conducted an investigation of Albert Seyranian, a principal in the joint-venture redevelopment team of D'Amico & Associates and Seyranian & Associates, now under contract to Daly City.

The investigation was prompted by insinuations that Seyranian was involved in a conflict of interest with certain property owners in the redevelopment target area.

The target area currently involves only those areas along Junipero Serra Boulevard and Mission Street.

In December 1974, Seyranian agreed to draft plans for some property owners in the Junipero Serra-John Daly Boulevard area. This was before he was contracted to the city as a consultant, Polonsky said.

Polonsky named as those involved in the matter Louis and Robert Rosenhauer, Dominic Satoro and Ugo Fantozzi — all substantial property owners in the redevelopment area.

Seyranian was to prepare plans on how the properties might be developed. No specifications for construction were prepared, it was learned.

Upon learning he was one of the three finalists being considered as a consultant to the city's Redevelopment Agency to draft plans for rehabilitation of the entire area, Seyranian backed out of the deal, Polonsky said.

The Rosenhauer brothers are connected with Lindsey Realtors, 55 John Daly Blvd., Daly City, Polonsky explained.

Seyranian left the plans with the Rosenhauers on his departure. The listing for the property ran out in December 1975 and was not renewed, Polonsky told the council.

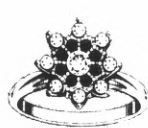

Polonsky's opinion appeared to satisfy the council members.

Mayor Tony Giammona said Monday he was satisfied with the city attorney's report and commented, "We can live with it."

Sessions Slated On Birth Control

The Mary's Help Hospital Natural Family Planning Center will hold its third series of classes in the Billings Ovulation Method of family planning April 22 at 7:30 p.m.

Couples interested in learning the method are invited to attend the biweekly course, which will continue through May 20. The classes, which are held in the hospital's conference dining room, are free.

The Ovulation Method of family planning, developed by the husband-wife team of Australian physicians, John J. and Evelyn Billings, relies upon the observation of cervical mucus to determine fertility.

Unlike the rhythm and or temperature methods of family planning, the Billings Method gives advance warning of ovulation, which insures the detection of fertile and infertile periods.

Natural Family Planning Centers have been established in several major metropolitan areas of the United States and foreign countries. According to Sister Arthur Gordon, clinic coordinator at Mary's Help Hospital, follow-up meetings on the Ovulation Method will be held at the Natural Family Planning Center on a weekly basis.

For more information on the classes, call Mary's Help Hospital at 992-4000, ext. 434.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Since we are still in the Lenten season, a recipe for a meatless dish is well in order.

A tuna casserole that includes rice, peas, celery soup and is topped off with a flaky crust would be just the thing to serve for dinner this Friday. A generous dish, it serves six to eight.

DEEP-DISH TUNA PIE

- 2 cans tuna, chunk style
- 2 cups cooked rice
- 3 cups cooked peas
- 2 cans cream of celery soup
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
- Pastry, plain or flavored with cheese

Combine the tuna, which has been drained and broken up, with the rice, peas, soup, milk, onion and Worcestershire sauce.

Pour into a two-quart casserole. Roll out pastry and shape to fit the top of casserole; set on top, flute edge and cut slits in top of crust.

Bake in hot oven (425-degrees) about 25 minutes.

PASTRY

- 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 to 3 tbsp. water

Sift the flour and salt into a bowl. Cut in the shortening. Sprinkle with two to three tablespoons cold water. (This really means, to sprinkle. As you add the water take a fork and toss the flour around so you won't get all the water in one place.)

Gather up the dough and place on wax paper. Knead three times. Press into a ball. Let stand at room temperature for 15 to 20 minutes. Roll out between wax paper.

Since you are going to have the oven going, why not make this coffee cake for dessert:

COTTAGE CHEESE COFFEE CAKE

- 1 package yellow cake mix
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup pineapple juice
- 2/3 cup cottage cheese
- 1 flat tin crushed pineapple

First drain the crushed pineapple very well. Combine the package cake mix with the eggs, pineapple juice (add water if necessary to make the amount) and the cottage cheese. Beat well.

Pour into a greased and floured 9x9x2-inch pan. Spread with topping mixture and dot with butter. Bake 350-degrees 35 to 40 minutes. Serve warm.

TOPPING

- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/4 tsp. nutmeg
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts.
- Drained pineapple

Combine the sugar with the cinnamon, nutmeg, nuts and pineapple. Spoon over cake, dot with butter and bake.

Volunteers Slate Spring Salvage

The Volunteers of America is conducting its 30th Annual Spring Salvage Drive to collect serviceable discards of all types of clothing, shoes, large and small gas and electrical appliances, furniture and household furnishings, dishes, pots and pans, antiques, bric-a-brac and old newspapers.

Ecklund, Bay Area executive officer, said, "Merchandise collected from donors begins an entirely new recycling process once it reaches us. We are enabled not only to provide direct aid to needy, but job opportunities for the men and women who assist in the sorting, repair and refurbishing of these donations."

St. Clair Chooses Pacifica Resident

Schoolteacher to Run Campaign

Jefferson High School teacher Jack Burgett has been named San Mateo County coordinator for the Bob St. Clair for State Senate campaign.

Burgett will have the responsibility for organizing volunteers for the former San Mateo County Supervisor and San Francisco 49'er in his bid for the Senate seat vacated by George Moscone.

Burgett, a resident of Pacifica who has been very active in school and civic affairs, said, "Bob St. Clair is the only real qualified candidate in the race. He is a man who will listen to the people and the man who the people will listen to."

Volunteers are needed for the cities of Daly City, Pacifica, South San Francisco, Colma, Brisbane and Broadmoor. Persons interested may obtain more information by phoning St. Clair for Senate Headquarters at 994-7025. St. Clair has said, "I'm running for the 6th Senatorial District because I'm the only declared candidate who has a working and continuous knowledge of the positive and problem areas of the district."

"To the best of my knowledge, the others who have expressed an interest in this office have either had to make a hurried move across town or are acquainted only with a minute section of the large area we're dealing with."

The reason for my involvement in this campaign is my identification and record of accomplishment in both counties that comprise this district — as a San Francisco businessman and a former supervisor of San Mateo County, and also as one who was born and raised in San Francisco and who is now living in San Mateo. I feel that both my personal and political life constitutes a link between the two counties."

I'm hopeful that this special election will be a positive campaign in which each of us can advance our ideas of improving representation of the 6th District," said St. Clair.

"For all intents and purposes, the San Mateo section has never been represented since it was newly reapportioned. The only elected official that our portion of San Mateo County has ever had, George Moscone, immediately started running for Mayor of San Francisco. I intend, instead, to be an equal voice for both parts of the district.

"I'm very pleased that the voters in the 6th District have shown their independence and determination to resist pressure groups in this election," St. Clair said.

"The power brokers have decided that 1976 is the year they're going to try to gain complete control in every corner of San Francisco and Marin and now they're also trying to run over San Mateo. I'm going to try to stop this."

Taxpayers Start Making More Errors as April 15 Nears

With the April 15 income tax deadline just over a week away, the Franchise Tax Board is preparing for the usual flood of returns.

"More than half of the expected eight million state tax returns have been received but we are anticipating about a million a week between now and the fifteenth," Executive Officer Martin Huff said recently.

Huff said taxpayers have generally done a good job in preparing their state returns but that the number of errors usually increases as taxpayers rush to meet the deadline.

There have been some minor problems this year and Huff cautioned taxpayers who have waited until the last minute to be particularly wary of them.

The most common error this year is being made by taxpayers in the $10,000 to $5,000 adjusted gross income bracket because the Tax Table has been changed.

In prior years, taxpayers who had more than $10,000 adjusted gross income had to use the Tax Rate Schedule because the table only covered income up to $10,000. But this year, the Tax Table has been extended to $15,000.

As a result, many taxpayers are itemizing their deductions then, finding the Tax Table and using it instead of the Tax Rate Schedule.

"This means," Huff said, "they are getting both the itemized deduction and the standard deduction since the table allows the deduction in arriving at the tax due."

This not only increases the amount of time necessary to process the return but also results in disappointment for the taxpayer, whose refund is reduced, delayed or both.

"Remember," Huff suggested to last minute taxpayers, "the Tax Table has the standard $1,000 and $2,000 deductions built into it. You can't itemize and use the Tax Table."

Another problem this year is with taxpayers who claim itemized deductions but do not attach the supporting Schedule A.

When this happens, the deduction is reduced to the standard amount, which usually means a reduced refund or, if there is a balance due, more tax to pay. The taxpayer is also sent a letter to verify the itemized deductions he has claimed but not shown. If he sends the supporting schedule, he is allowed the amount claimed but a five to six week delay is caused.

Huff mentioned two other problems to avoid: Don't claim State Disability Insurance as part of State Income Tax Withheld by the employer. Disability Insurance cannot be claimed as a pre-payment of income tax nor can it be claimed as an itemized deduction.

If you're a taxpayer filing primarily to claim renter's credit, do not show Social Security income or non-taxable pension income on your return.

And finally, Huff reminded taxpayers to read the instructions, verify the figures, use the label, sign and mail by April 15.

Local Girl Places In 7 SSF Swim Events

Fifteen swimmers from the South San Francisco Aquatics Club entered the A-AA Closed Invitational Championships of Zone 1 North sponsored by the Belmont-San Carlos Trident Swim Club and Golden Gate Aquatic Club March 26, 27, and 28 at Serra High School.

Bernice Nava placed in seven events and made two new AA times: 3rd with a AA time in the 100 fly, 3rd with a AA time in the 50 back, 4th in the 200 free, 5th in the 200 IM, 7th in the 100 free, 7th in the 100

Outstanding Students Contest Opens in D.C.

The Outstanding Student Awards Committee convened under the chairmanship of Frank Verducci and voted to continue one of the Daly City Chamber of Commerce's most successful and rewarding annual affairs.

This year the format is changed. The Committee unanimously adopted the suggestion of Beverly Dikas to give a $100 United States Savings Bond to each outstanding student in each school, in addition to the Certificates of Merit.

The criteria the committee will use in choosing these outstanding students will consider academic achievement and overall contributions made by the student to his own school. The determination of the winners is left in the hands of the Jefferson Union High School District.

One student is to be selected from each school: Serramonte High School, Westmoor High School, Jefferson High School, and Thornton High School.

The date for presenting the awards is April 15, at a noon luncheon in Bianchini's Restaurant, 35 Skyline Plaza, Daly City.

The Chamber of Commerce will present a $100 United States Savings Bond to each outstanding student from the four above mentioned schools. The four students, their parents, the four Administrators, the Superintendent of Schools and guest speaker, Dr. John C. Petersen, President of Skyline College will be the guests of the Daly City Chamber of Commerce at this luncheon.

In addition to the four winners the Chamber of Commerce will give the three runners-up within each school a Certificate of Achievement, to be presented to them by their School Administrators, within their school.

Anna Ohlendorf, Daly City, City Clerk, stated that an overflow crowd is expected and that reservations should be made early through the Chamber of Commerce by phoning 755-8526.

Mary's Help Race Day Is Off and Running

will conclude this evening with group discussions and summerizations moderated by the Rev. Mr. Thomas Rolfe.

Refreshments will be served by Mrs. John Hughes and her committee in the parish hall. The evening service will begin at 7 p.m.

Lakeside Presbyterian Church on Easter Sunday at both the 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. services. Everyone may attend.

insight into the skill and talent of the popular author of the Hornblower series and the African Queen.

Mrs. Emmett Tierney, publicity chairwoman for the group, said the response to Hodapp was so tremendous that he will be invited to speak at one of the evening meetings when an even larger audience will be able to enjoy his presentation.

APRIL 10 IS the date selected for the Northern Spring Conference for the Friends of California Libraries.

The gathering will take place in the San Mateo County Library at the college of Notre Dame in Belmont. Members of the local chapter will be accompanying Mrs. Verna Teglia, Daly City chapter president.

April has been designated as membership drive month, according to Mrs. Teglia, and current members are attempting to reach more people to interest them in the library and the activities of the "Friends."

If you would like to help with the development of our libraries any member of the group will be glad to explain the function and activities which they sponsor or you may write for more information to Mrs. Michael Daw, membership chairwoman, in care of the Friends of the Daly City Library, 275 Southgate Ave., Daly City.

Memberships range from $2 for individuals, $3.50 for families, $5 for organizations and $25 for patron status.

PLANNING

Mrs. McRobert Stewart, chairman of the Daly City Garden Club's installation dinner planned for April 9, looks over the menu with Vic Bianchini, owner of the restaurant where the dinner will be served.

Exhibit of Photos Set at Libraries

The Recreation Department is sponsoring exhibits of Jim Schlecker's photographs in all Daly City Libraries through May 15. Four simultaneous exhibits will be on view at: Serramonte Library, 40 Wem-bly Drive; Westlake Library, 275 Southgate Ave.; John Daly Library, 6351 Mission St.; and Bayshore Library, 2960 Geneva Ave.

Schlecker is a resident of Daly City and is currently working on a practical field manual of photography. He studied at the Art Student's League in New York and has his M.A. from New York University.

He has been an art teacher on high school and college levels. His travels include nearly every state in the Union, as well as Canada, Mexico, North Africa, Sicily and Italy.

Airman James D. Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Davis of 4149 Collan Blvd., Daly City, is assigned to Sheppard AFB, Tex., for duty in the administrative field after completing Air Force basic training. He is a 1975 graduate of El Camino High School, South San Francisco.

Wins Honor

Air Force Sgt. Harold A. Bean, son of Mrs. Hildegarde E. Moffitt, 246 Oriente St., Daly City, recently won second place honors in Tactical Air Command's Photographic Journal.

ist of the Year contest. Sergeant Bean is a still photographic specialist with the 23d Tactical Fighter Wing at England AFB, La. His selection for the award was based upon a portfolio of news pictures he had taken throughout the year, including a photo-essay on motorcycle racing. Last year the sergeant also won a first place photograph award in the color print category during base-level competition.

A 1967 graduate of Jefferson High School, South San Francisco, Sergeant Bean attended the College of San Mateo prior to entering the Air Force in 1969. Sergeant Bean's wife, Irene, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Bitoff of Rt. 1, Scott City, Kan. The sergeant's father, Robert E. Bean, resides in Lucerne.

Assigned

Staff Sgt. William F. Castro, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Guillermo C. Castro of 242 N. Mayfair Ave., Daly City, has received a new assignment

ELECTRONICS

Airman David G. Edmison, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Edmison of 1667 Sweetwood Drive, Colma, Calif., has been selected for technical training in the U.S. Air Force missile electronics field at Sheppard AFB, Tex. He is a 1973 graduate of Westmoor High School, Daly City and attended California College at San Francisco.

following graduation from the computer programming specialist course conducted by the Air Training Command at Kessler AFB, Miss.

Sergeant Castro, who was trained in the operation of conventional and electronic data processing systems, now goes to Scott AFB, Ill., for duty with a unit of the Military Airlift Command.

Outstanding

U.S. Air Force 1st Lt. William A. Tolbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Tolbert, 1105 Bowen, Modesto, was recently named one of the 1975 Outstanding Young Men of America by the U.S. Jaycee's.

Lieutenant Tolbert's wife, Christine, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.E. McCain, of 193 Huntington Drive, Daly City.

Promoted

Marine Pfc Bruce D. Amundson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Amundson of 18 Clearview Drive, Daly City, has been promoted to his present rank while serving at the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C.

Ten Guidelines for Studying

"I can't study! I simply can't get down to work. Have you got a book to help me?"

You bet your student poor light, inadequate space and frequent interruptions are all obstacles to effective studying." She dispels a myth with these what you are learning?

As you study your brain must be made to carry out four basic jobs: Input, processing, storage and retrieval. It can be helped in doing this with skill if you learn to exclude outside noises, exclude outside thoughts, focus your eyes for seeing and your ears for listening and by directing your attention on details one by one.

Be reasonable and rational in your thinking, do not form conclusions on the basis of personal feelings and guesses or opinions, test your conclusions and store correct concepts in your mind; build a mode of enquiry.

Guidepost Three — "Use Your Time Wisely In Class and At Home." Plan your time, learn to listen, with both ears, participate actively in class discussions, write down directions.

Guidepost Four — "Do Your Assignments Thoroughly and Purposefully." Ms. Hardy says to do your assignments purposefully means to consider the reason for doing your assignment is to improve yourself rather than to please the teacher or to get a good grade.

Guidepost Five is important. "Review What You Have Learned."

Guidepost Six — "Learn How to Read Better and Faster." Make your eyes do the reading, practice eye movements. Here the author presents some fundamentals of effective reading. You can test your own skills by using them. You can improve your reading by using a progress chart designed by Ms. Hardy.

Guidepost Seven — "Learn How to Use the Library." This guidepost urges you to make use of the many materials available in libraries, instead of using only your textbooks.

Guidepost Eight — "Learn To Prepare For and Take Tests." Ms. Hardy suggests that for each test a student should first find out what the test will be about. What chapters, pages, discussions, films, etc. will be covered. Find out what kind of test it will be and prepare accordingly.

In preparing for tests review what you have learned by asking yourself questions; by testing yourself on chapters and concepts that are going to be covered in the test.

Guidepost Ten is last but not least. "Solve Personal Problems That Interfere With Studying." Here the author counsels students to clear their minds of hostility, fears of competing, worries and anxieties, dislikes, troubles at home and hatreds of yourself.

In Ms. Hardy's words, "Have you faced yourself honestly and taken steps to solve any personal problems that may be bothering you?" It is important to be aware of your attitudes, for they can greatly affect your chances for success in study and in school and in all of your life itself.

Surely "How To Study In High School" is help for the person who can't study; even for the persons who want to study better and better.

High Honors For Writers

Results of the Eleventh Annual Writing/Artwork Contest sponsored by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association for junior high school students have been announced.

This contest is held annually and is open to any junior high school student in the United States. This year, the members of Southwood's paper, "The Brave," did the best in the history of Southwood Junior High School. The school is in South San Francisco.

A first place or superior rating was awarded to Randy Bianchi in feature writing. The entry was a review of James Whitmore's performance in "Give 'Em Hell Harry."

Another first place rating was given to Carol Doherty for news writing. The article Carol did for "The Brave" Oct. 15 concerning the closing of the gate on the school's lower field won this honor for Carol.

In editorial writing, editor Charlie Smith won a second place or excellent rating. In his first editorial of the school year, Sept. 23, he asked the students of Southwood to elect intelligent, responsible students to be officers in the student government. The editorial urged the student body to make the right choices when voting.

"The incorporation of art into topical sports event is a good idea," stated the judge in commenting on Alex Dedal's entry in the cartoon work category. Alex depicted the Southwood Savages doing battle against the Westborough Wildcats in football for the Nov. 5 issue of "The Brave."

The individual entries were in competition with students' work from all areas of the United States. Winners were announced during the recent Fifty-second Annual Convention of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association in New York City.

Leadership Award for Student At Serramonte High School

"Active" is the word to describe Gale Diane Hom. The 17-year-old Serramonte High School student, a finalist in a recent Elks Club Most Valuable Student contest, just received an Honorable Mention in the Family Leader of Tomorrow competition organized by the Betty Crocker Co.

"Winning this honorable mention is really a surprise because I'm not domestically oriented. Most of my energies are channeled towards government. And, of course, academics," she said.

Competition appears to be a way of life for Gale. At the end of April she will attend a dinner for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. scholarship finalists at the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco.

Gale explained that this is a state-wide scholarship organized by the P.G. & E. employees' Association of which her mother is a member.

As a legislative advocate for California Junior State (a high school student organization), she helped to arrange "Lobby Day." One hundred fifty students from all over the state, including Los Angeles and Eureka traveled to Sacramento to hear talks by lobbyists and legislators.

Afterwards, some 20 senators and assemblymen invited us to lunch where they were able to speak more freely," said Gale. The organization, Gale said, held conventions in Los Angeles and Sacramento where the students presented their opinions to legislators.

Next year Gale hopes to study at University of California, Berkeley. She wants a career in medicine and already has attended a scholarship interview during which 12 persons sitting across a table "fired questions at me." Apart from the many activities in which she is involved, Gale finds time to work for a Serramonte Shopping Center optometrist.

"I've learned a lot about dealing with people who come into the office. I also help the optometrist in verifying prescriptions," she said.

Free, Free, Free Barney's Coupons

Judging from the crowds flocking to South Lake Tahoe, you'd think gold had been discovered. And for many, that's just what is happening in the casino areas. Barney's, a family club, continues to do capacity business, especially since the addition of several new slots. The South Tahoe Nugget is adding a new look - from the kitchen right on through to the gaming area. Suggest you heed the advertisement mentioning the restaurants where Barney's coupons are available, and take advantage of the bonus refunds. Free, free, free. Enrico Romano, the driving force behind his successful Romano's restaurant in Rockaway Beach, is a man of many talents. The suave restaurant owner still has the energy and varied interests that established him as a prominent Pacific personality. Stop by some night for one of his Italian specialties and drum up a conversation with him. Beef Wellington is a favorite dish of international celebrities dining at the elegant new Phil Lehr's Steakery in the bottom of the San Francisco Hilton Tower. It's a fork-tender filet mignon topped with liver pate, and a California cling peach half, wrapped in a flaky pastry shell and baked to perfection. Delicious! Due to customer reaction, the 50 cents off coupon at Tanforan Park's Garden Restaurants will be valid for one more month. General Manager Jack Kuks and the various restaurant operators in the complex will be honoring the coupon all through April. With the passing of Vince Licata, the founder of Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant, in San Mateo, a permanent void will be felt by members of his family, scores of employees, and countless friends. It has been a pleasure to know Vince and to work with him on his "Bright Lights" advertising for the past 18 years. Without a doubt, he was an extraordinary man.

Rick Abinante Now Castaway Asst. Mgr.

Rick Abinante, assistant to General Manager Peter Bövenberg at The Castaway, was bar manager at Bear Valley Ski Resort in the High Sierra before coming to this Coyote Point restaurant two years ago. He was also assistant manager of Michael's in Sunnyvale. The Tri-Sounds, now entertaining in the Bayhill Lounge, San Bruno, is a lively group that pulls big audiences wherever it appears. Once the momentum gets to rolling, you can expect SRO dance crowds at this Bayhill Shopping Center bistro. With summer just around the corner, a scenic place to relax, bask and dine is Rockaway Beach in Pacifica. Located only minutes from the mid-peninsula, Rockaway Beach could be described as "Gust's Acres," as Nick Gust and his family own three thriving restaurants (Nick's, The Moonraker and Captain Charles), which overlook the Pacific Ocean. Helen Trainor, hostess at Scotty Campbell's in Redwood City, has added another curio attraction to the restaurant. She recently acquired an antique French china cabinet, richly finished in gold leaf, in which she displays her collection of rare tea cups. The restaurant is open at 4:30 p.m. for cocktails (4 p.m. on Sunday); dinner served from 5 p.m. Early-birds are already making reservations for the fabulous Easter Ramos Fizz Brunch and gourmet dinner at Lehr's Greenhouse in San Francisco. It's a beautiful garden in full bloom - perfect setting for Easter dining.

ELECTED

Ricardo Amoguis, Daly City, a founder of Baguio-Californians four years ago, will be installed its president at a dinner-dance April 24 at the Rodeway Inn, South San Francisco. A native of Baguio, Amoguis served with the U.S. Army. He is an employee of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Firemen Hurt in DC Blaze

A Daly City man returned from a trip to the laundromat Sunday to find firemen battling a fire in his apartment.

Daly City Battalion Chief Lionel Church said the cause of the fire, which started in the kitchen of an apartment at 522 Clarinada Ave. occupied by D. Pasvola, has not been determined. Church said an appliance probably was left on, but fire and smoke damage was too extensive to determine which one.

Although the fire, which was reported at 2:45 p.m. by a neighbor, was confined to Pasvola's apartment, there was smoke damage to most of the other 16 apartments in the building. Only two of its occupants were at home at the time of the fire.

Church estimated damage to the apartment at $9,000 and its contents at $5,000. The fire was brought under control at 3:20 p.m.

Joe Messina

From High in His Cab an Inspiration Trucker Invents 'Caution Light'

Call this the inspiration: Three years ago, perched up high in the cab of a rig he drives for Di Salvo Trucking Co. of San Francisco, Joe Messina had an idea.

U.S. Highway 101 had not been extended yet through Gilroy and a flashing yellow light blinked a warning for people to slow down and stop. And they did, slow and easy.

Messina had seen hundreds of rear-end accidents in his 20 years as a truck driver and he always wondered, "I can stop, why can't they?" Suddenly it was clear. From on high, he had the extra reaction time advantage of being able to see over the car ahead of him to watch for others to brake.

And, when the idea came to him, it seemed as obvious as the wheel must have seemed to its inventor: a yellow caution light mounted near the brake light warning other drivers when a car has slowed down.

Then came the perspiration.

Messina toyed with the idea for about a year, getting the drawings together for a series of tape switches and wires connecting the accelerator with the brake pedal. He had in mind a light that would signal other drivers that a car was slowing down — before it braked.

"At 30 miles per hour, the distance you travel from the moment you take your foot off the accelerator before you even brake is 100 feet," he said. "That's before you even start to brake!"

He took the idea first to one company that specializes in helping inventors patent their ideas and then a second, Raymond Lee Organization, Inc. of New York. (The company is also helping two other local men — Rudy A. Barmettler of Daly City, the inventor of a security lock for trailers, and Carl E. Turner of Redwood City, who has invented an electric gopher chaser — get their ideas protected and possibly marketed.)

"I took the idea to them and they put their engineers onto it," he said. "All I've seen is on paper, because I haven't wanted to invest the money in it to put one on a car."

Right now the idea — called "The Caution Light" — is being shown to various electronics firms across the country who might be interested in installing it on automobiles, Messina said. Patents are pending in the United States and Canada, and Messina has applied for international rights in England.

He estimates the cost for patents, drawing up plans, and Raymond Lee's fee at $2,000.

He said his wife went along with him on the decision to invest in the idea.

When it came to the money part she said, "if somebody else comes out with it, then you'll really be mad. You have to just blow it all — like going to Vegas, Reno."

SSF Firemen Prepare For Recognition Day

The South San Francisco Fire Department is planning to observe Fire Service Recognition Day with an open house between 1 and 3:30 p.m. May 8 at the Central Fire Station, 201 Baden Ave.

Firemen will show visitors their equipment and explain firefighting techniques. Several paramedics will demonstrate their mobile intensive care paramedic unit.

A new piece of equipment — a 90-foot elevating platform truck — will also be displayed.

Fuchsias in Baskets Add Color to Garden

By IVA NEWMAN

Hanging baskets and other container-grown fuchsias are so beautiful when seen at the Floral Fiesta that many home gardeners cease to think of them as garden plants. Fuchsias are excellent plants for shady areas in the garden. They provide a tremendous amount of color throughout the summer and fall and often through the winter.

Ted Paskesen, a hybridizer and a director of the American Fuchsia Society, wrote the most interesting and informative article in the April issue of the American Fuchsia Society's Bulletin in which he said: "Grown as ground plants, fuchsias may be controlled to almost any size and shape to fit the space which they are intended to fill." He went on to say that if plants are pruned during their dormant period in January, new shoots will be in ample evidence by March or early April.

He also brought out a fact well known to growers of woody ornamentals, in which he states that when the top structure of a plant is pruned during dormancy, the roots of the plants in the ground should be root pruned. This is done by driving a sharp spade into the ground about two feet from the base of the plant and completely encircling the plant. This is done each year to prevent the heavy roots from spreading out too far and it will keep the small feeder roots closer to the plants. This says Paskesen makes it easy to provide a generous mulch of rich compost or humus, such as leaf mold mixed with cow or steer manure.

Spring and early summer pinching are what rosarians call "finger" pruning. It simply consists of pinching, breaking or cutting off the extreme growing tip of the new shoots. Fuchsia plants produce their leaves in pairs, one on each side of the stem. The pinch should be made just above a pair of leaves. It must be done very carefully so as not to injure the leaf nodes as small side laterals will grow from these leaf nodes just below the pinched end of the stem. In turn these laterals are pinched so more laterals will form thus producing more flowering stems.

Paskesen suggests that if a fuchsia is intended to grow tall, such as over a lattice or high lath structure, the tips do not have to be pinched so severely but must be tied and trained in place until the desired height is reached. For this style of culture some of the large flower, tall-growing or pillar types should be used. Since most fuchsia plants have two or more stems emerging at or near the soil surface foliage may be encouraged to cover the bareness of the lower branches. When pruned or shaped into a fan or an espalier they must be pinched and trained with extra care.

Sometimes fresh shoots do not break at the node where they were expected. Instead they may emerge closer to the main stem, leaving a short, inactive and unsightly stub end which should be clipped off to improve the appearance of the plant.

Watering and Fertilizing Important

During the time of growth and pinching, watering and fertilizing of fuchsias are important. Any organic fertilizer, worked into the top inch of soil, is most beneficial, but be careful not to disturb the feeder roots near the surface. Weekly to 10-day feeding with a commercial fertilizer mixed at half strength and having a high nitrogen content may be used, but be sure to water your plants first before a strong fertilizer is given them. Feeding with this type of fertilizer should be done only when there is plenty of active vegetative growth.

Fuchsias grown out in the garden will stand more neglect than those grown in pots, for their roots are free to travel in their search for food and moisture. Plants in the ground require less frequent watering than do those in pots, and one watering a day may be enough. Potted plants, on the other hand, may at times need watering and fogging several times on a warm day because the roots are less protected from drying conditions.

In mild climates, such as we enjoy on the Peninsula, the above techniques will produce plants that will flower well for most of the latter half of the year.

Pinching

For beginning gardeners, pinching is usually done when the new growth develops two or three sets of leaves. What is pinched out is the growing tip. In the case of shaping a bush, try to keep the plant well rounded, should there be a void space more pinching should be done to encourage additional growth. Turning a potted plant half-way around each day encourages growth completely around the plant. If left facing one way all the time the back or shaded side will be rather flat because of less growth.

When pinching, care should be exercised not to mar the tender leaves remaining on the plant. A small nick in a leaf while it is little becomes an unsightly gash as it develops full growth. The mention of "nodes" and pinching, leaving two, three or more nodes, may confuse the beginner. Actually the node is the junction where the leaves join the stem. Fuchsias normally have two leaves, one on each side of the stem, forming two nodes which are counted as one when selecting the number of nodes to be left on the plant. Some varieties will have single leaves and thus single nodes alternately along the stem while others will form three and four leaves equally spaced and when pinched, three or four new growths will appear, one at each node. The spacing between nodes increases as the plant grows, the amount of lengthening depending on whether more or less light is given.

When the desired form and growth has been reached on a plant, stop pinching. This will encourage the flowering cycle of the plant to begin. A fuchsia will usually flower six to eight weeks after the final pinching.

One of the best ways to learn all of the helpful details about growing beautiful fuchsias is to join a fuchsia society. There are four in this area: The San Mateo County Branch meets the second Tuesday of the month at the San Mateo Garden Center; The San Bruno Branch meets the second Friday at the Crestmoor Elementary School; The Pacifica Branch meets the third Friday at the Pacific Manor School; The San Francisco Branch meets the second Monday in the Hall of Flowers. All meetings begin at 8 p.m. and are open to the public without charge. Dues are nominal and include the monthly American Fuchsia Bulletin, a very informative and helpful publication for both beginners and experienced growers.

PUNCH-AND-JUDY STAGING OF 'SHREW'
DESTROYS SHAKESPEARE'S POETRY

American Conservatory Theater has again revived its merry-go-round production of "The Taming of the Shrew" as the brass ring reward of their closing season. There is no doubt that audiences will grab at it with relish...the name of the game here is fun, frolic and fantasy.

But despite the sound of laughter surrounding me and my appreciation for the lively spirit in which it's performed, there is something shrill, shallow and all too showy about the Shakespearean comedy which Bill Ball has dismembered and reassembled to suit his purposes rather than convention, tradition or respect for the author.

When it opened first three seasons ago, I felt my sympathy and regard for the Women's Liberation movement was reason for my prejudice against it. Certainly it is beautifully costumed by Robert Fletcher in creamy tones of white, beige and eggshell. And Ralph Funicello's open space latticed set provides an imaginative background for the various locations to which the travelers sojourn.

Still, the pace and the boistrousness, the step-by-step choreography that measures every fall, tumble and accent all wear thin by the insistence of it all. The whole thing is so tongue-in-cheek, my jaw ached the rest of the night.

Both Fredi Olster and Anthony S. Teague as Katharina and Petruchio, respectively, are enormously appealing performers. They laugh and jostle and wink between flip-flops, hair-pulling, tripping, wrestling and lurching at each other with fists and insults. Yet there is something too precious, too private in their joking and the audience is losing the essence of the Bard's poetry at the expense of too much hyped-up, extraneous clowning.

The show's undisputed popularity has brought it back for a third season which means it's a money-maker and thereby reason to cheer about. But where it's heavy with bedazzling circus atmosphere, it's light on wit and subtlety.

For all its exuberance, there is something vulgar about its Punch-And-Judy staging that destroys the effectiveness of the comedy for me. There isn't a lot you can do to "Taming of the Shrew" to damage its essential brightness and gaiety but Ball has certainly diminished it with this slick slapstick.

String Quartet Plays 'Real' Chamber Music

By ROBERT BURMISTER

What better place for a new chamber music group to make its debut might there be than in a chamber a living room to be precise. The Peninsula String Quartet saw the dawn of life in just such a setting Friday night at 2800 Adeline Drive in Burlingame.

The program, which was repeated at the same address April 4 at 3:00 p.m. free of charge, is a well selected one for a new group to establish its credentials.

Included is the Haydn "Lark" Quartet, Op. 64, No. 5, Mendelssohn's Quartet in D Major, Op. 44, No. 1, and the Dvorak "American" Quartet in F Major, Op. 96. The stylistic span is considerable.

While the room is not enormous, it has a high vaulted ceiling which renders a well-balanced sound from the group even in close quarters. Added perspective can be had by sitting in the adjoining room, although the temptation of comfortable, well-stuffed chairs may tip the balance in favor of the main room for many.

Included in the free admission charge is a very regal cat who wanders in and out at will, perhaps checking to see if the remains of one of its ancestors is bearing the brunt of a main theme on an E string.

The Peninsula Quartet is made up of violinists Casimir Antosik of Burlingame, Marjorie Lan of San Mateo, Harry Tyldsley, principal violist of the San Carlos Symphony, and Joann Pritchard, principal cellist of the Peninsula Symphony. Particularly considering it to be their first performance together, they exhibited a fine ensemble unity. They have the kind of close-knit emotional amalgamation which is essential to a successful string quartet playing, and it is a union which will grow tighter with time.

Though the opening Haydn "Lark" Quartet was a bit overbearing in matters of volume, the Mendelssohn and Dvorak pieces were very nicely proportioned. In both the Haydn and Mendelssohn quartets the first violin part carries the greatest melodic weight. In the Haydn work the accompanying instruments tended to challenge the violence for prominence, and more than once it became a temporary race to see who could outdo whom.

The Mendelssohn, however, was a model of good playing judgment. The players all used a lighter touch without sacrificing their strong rhythmic sense. They changed the moods quite completely from segment to segment no matter how short-lived the flurry might be.

The individual movements were all well paced in the development of their progress, the second movement Minuet capturing particular honors in this regard. They managed a very delicate working out of the principal themes between the two violins over a pizzicato bass line in the third movement and came to a powerful finale blend in the fourth.

The Dvorak "American" Quartet is reputed to have been written in three days when the composer was visiting a Czech settlement in Spillville, Ia. It was written just after he had completed his "New World" Symphony and the mood of the symphony pours over strongly into the quartet.

The broad, sweeping American folk themes are as in the symphony, inevitably contrasted by jaunty, dance rhythms from the composer's native Bohemia.

The four musicians interpreted the work with vitality, achieving a particularly robust third movement. Violist Tyldsley endowed his instrument's many important themes with considerable soulfulness throughout the whole work. As in the Mendelssohn, the finale was strongly played.

Carnival Planned

A family carnival will be held by the P.T.A. of Westborough Junior High School in the school's parking lot at 2570 Westborough Blvd., for three days starting April 9 at 3 p.m.

Proceeds from the carnival will be used to support student activities throughout the school year.

The carnival will open at 3 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. Saturday, and noon Sunday. The midway will remain open as long as there is demand.

Town Meeting Slated

A bicentennial town meeting will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., April 24 at the Westlake Community Center, 145 Lake Merced Blvd., Daly City.

The event is sponsored by the Daly City Bicentennial Committee, the Daly City Chamber of Commerce, the YMCA and various other service groups. Community members may share their thoughts, ideas and concerns about the quality of life in their neighborhoods.

Panel Sets Crime Talk

"What Happens After the Bust" is the topic of a judicial forum planned for 7:15 p.m., April 8, in Daly City. It is sponsored by Daly City's Citizens' Crime Prevention Committee (CAPTURE).

Among the speakers are Daly City Police Lieutenant Tom Culley, Juvenile Court Judge Frank Rose, District Attorney Keith Sorenson, several probation officers, and others.

Miss Daly City Contest Is Open

The Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a Miss Daly City Fashion Luncheon at noon May 20 at the Francisco Mobile Home Manor, 700 Hoffmann St.

The fashion show/luncheon is culminated by the selection of the Daly City Queen who will be Daly City's representative to the San Mateo County Fiesta Dream Girl Pageant.

She will act as official hostess at ribbon cuttings, groundbreakings, and other civic affairs. Fashion ensembles will be furnished by five clothing stores each from the Serramonte and Westlake Shopping Centers.

The contest is open to all girls between the ages of 17 and 25 who have been residents during the past six months of Daly City, Colma and Broadmoor, and have never been married.

No previous modeling or drama experience is necessary, since all contestants

Graduated

Marine Pvt. Amador A. Ramos, son of Mrs. Soledad A. Ramos of 403 Northaven Drive, Daly City, was graduated recently from recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

will receive training at special classes.

The filing period will continue through April 30. Applications may be made through the Daly City Chamber of Commerce office, 6767 Mission St., Serramonte Shopping Center's main information desk.

Westlake Development Offices and Mission Street merchants through Beverly Dikas at Westlake Auto Service.
